

Parenting Apart

A workshop for divorcing or separating parents

The Parenting Apart Workshop is funded in full by federal Access to Visitation grant funds.

“The greatest gift you can give your child is the right to love the other parent. And when you do that, you open a door to your child’s heart that can never be closed. They love you both and need you both. Let them have you.”

Parenting Apart is an educational workshop mandated by the Superior Court of Mendocino County for non-custodial parents who are experiencing divorce, separation, custody, and visitation issues.

The workshop focuses on the needs of the non-custodial parent as well as the children. In addition, participants learn the importance of co-parenting and skills to effectively build a business relationship for the sake of the children.

Custodial parents are welcome (co-parents attend separately).
